How can the State Archives of North Carolina help you locate African American ancestors? During this all-day genealogy workshop, three archivists will share the research materials, tools, and methods that are most effective in conducting genealogical research. Fee includes a boxed lunch.

This workshop is presented in conjunction with the Treasures of Carolina: Stories from the State Archives exhibit, running at the Museum of History through July 31, 2016. The exhibit showcases one-of-a-kind documents, photographs, and other media—public records and private materials that are rarely on public view—from the State Archives of North Carolina, the state's memory bank.

Sponsored by the Friends of the Archives Inc. and the Museum of History Associates.

Registration

Registration for this workshop is limited to 50 people. Deadline to register is July 11, 2016. Completed forms and payment are required to register for this workshop. Both must be received by the deadline. Online registration is available at NCMOH-programs.com.
